Pre-Finishing Offers Extended Protection (True Customer Experience)

The first time I heard about the benefits of owning a fiberglass door, was after my husband and I purchased a ten-year old home in Mason, Ohio. The home's builder installed a wood door, and although I am sure it was a way to add quality to the home's value, this was the first thing we changed upon purchase of the home.

Fiberglass Entry Door

Direct sun exposure and harsh winter conditions had taken its toll on the wood. When tasked with replacing the door, a dealer I visited discussed the benefits of fiberglass. I learned the door could be pre-finished with a wide variety of paint or stain colors, and it came with a warranty. This was too tempting to pass up.

Maria Townsend

Seal-Rite
Inside Sales
Lansing, Michigan

Maria Townsend has been a Seal-Rite employee for seven years. She came to the company as a seasoned professional having worked in distribution and for three different lumber yards since 1992.

"Customer service is what I thrive on," said Townsend. "Without customers, we wouldn't be in business. I treat people the way I want to be treated which includes being personable as well as professional." She believes a good salesperson cannot have tunnel vision. "I live by the old adage, 'Where there's a will, there's a way.' Anything you set your mind to can be accomplished."
